SECTION B

51. Read the passage below carefully and in full sentences, answer questions about it.

Born in a very humble polygamous setting, life had never been very easy for Kofi. For quite a great deal of years of hardship in his primary education, Kofi finally dropped out of school. This was after his parents had died of cancer before he could complete primary five. The only option for the poor young man was to stay home and perhaps help his maternal uncle with fishing in the nearby river. His uncle could wake him up at down daily and prepare for the day's activity. Since he had huge hopes of returning to school and completing his studies, Kofi worked tirelessly and obediently. His uncle started liking the work. The uncle gave him some token of one hundred fifty-five thousand shillings.

When Kofi returned home from the river one evening, he went straight to his bedroom for close to thirty minutes. He said to himself, "I must do something with this money, however, little it may be." The following day he went out to the trading center and bought a TV set. Nobody had ever owned a TV set in Kofi's village. The young man now became famous. The village people started to throng his home every evening to watch news and some Nigerian movies. Both young and old people crowded the compound for the shows. The locals now became addicted to that and could not afford to miss even a single day. This made Kofi to come up with the idea of charging a small fee for one to watch. He requested the villagers to pay five hundred shillings for adults and two hundred shillings for the youths so that he could fuel the generator since there was no electricity in the area. Kofi started saving sixty thousand shillings a fortnight. Within two months, Kofi had raised money enough for school fees. He opted to go back to school, and as I talk he is soon completing his studies in one of the most expensive secondary schools in Uganda.

(Questions 51 to 55 carry 10 marks each)

51. Read the passage below carefully and answer in full sentences, the questions that follow.

A birthday party is an annual event. It is held to celebrate the day one was born. Unlike funerals where people mourn their departed dear ones, birthday parties are celebrations of joy. They are celebrated by both adults and children. However, these celebrations are common among children.

Last Saturday, Akumu's class celebrated her birthday. The class had been informed a day earlier. A notice about the party had been displayed for the class by Mr. Lukyamuzi, the class teacher.

"Hello children," Mr. Lukyamuzi said, "as displayed on the class notice board, tomorrow will be Akumu's birthday and we are all invited to join her in celebration."

This invitation excited Akumu's classmates. They talked about a lot of things that they expected and imagined. All children anxiously looked forward to enjoying the party. By 8:00 o'clock the following morning, all the children had arrived at school. Surprisingly, Benanta, a habitual late comer had also kept time. Soon, all the pupils converged in the school main hall followed by their teachers shortly after.

Introducing himself as the day's master of ceremonies, Mr. Jon Barasa asked Mark Kigozi, the shortest boy in the class, to lead the gathering in a word of prayer that would bless the celebration.

On the table laid before the gathering was a large pink and white cake. Every pupil was excited by the icing on the cake and how tasty it looked. The pupils enjoyed beverages of different flavours. There was a lot of music and dancing as the party lasted for about three hours. This was fun indeed for everybody in attendance. During his speech towards the end of the party, the class teacher first congratulated Akumu on making thirteen years of age.

"I am proud of Akumu. Akumu is a true symbol of discipline and humility," said Mr. Lukyamuzi.

He then advised the children to emulate her discipline, warning that whoever misbehaved would not be allowed to be part of any future class celebrations.

Read the passage the below and answer the questions that follow;

51. Our plane had just landed. We were to undergo several security checks before leaving the airport. Police officer dogs were directed at our luggage. Security agents searched our bodies with metal detectors. This was compulsory because the crime rate has risen.

While in the queue, I saw a particular lady who had sat next to me in the plane. Throughout the flight, she had not mentioned any word to me. May be she could not speak any of the languages Ugandans speak. "Hold for me this handbag. I would like to use the washrooms" she said as she put her small bag on my shoulder. She was so much in a hurry that the luggage and dropped down. All the people around could sense that it was unusually heavy. "Come back!" I shouted to catch her attention and that of the security officers. To my surprise the lady ran and disappeared. I sensed danger and shouted at people to move away from the luggage that was on the floor. The police moved swiftly and stopped her.

Soon sniffer dogs were searching her bag as I watched from a distance. The dogs barked uncontrollably. When the police moved to inspect the bag, they found cocaine carefully tacked in.

My heart almost stopped beating when a man was arrested. The face, nails and hair were exactly like those of the woman who sat next to me in the aeroplane. This man had disguised himself as a woman. He was handcuffed and taken to the police station. He had committed a serious crime. A week later, I was summoned to appear before court as a witness. The thought of how drug abuse has wasted the lives of many people gave me courage to stand before the judge and testify against him.

SECTION B 50 MARKS

51. Read the passage below and in full sentences answer the questions that follow.

In the village of Umwa, there lived a very old coffee grower. His name was Ndeka. Every season, he sold a lot of coffee beans. He got a lot of money to pay his children's fees and feed his family well. The remaining money was kept in the bank. The bank manager was always happy with Ndeka. She even gave him loans without any interest on them.

As time went on, Ndeka grew very old. Sometimes he failed to count his money. At other times he forgot his account number.

One day he went to the bank to withdraw some money. He wanted to pay the workers who had helped him to pick the ripe coffee. When he reached there, he was given a withdraw form. He filled in all the information needed. He returned it to the teller. In a short time, the teller had given the form back to Ndeka. Ndeka was surprised. The teller didn't tell him anything. He thought she was rude. He tried to ask her but she said nothing. He then pushed the form again to the teller. The teller told him rudely that it had bounced. When Ndeka asked her, she said that he had forged the signature. Ndeka almost collapsed. How could he do that to his own money. He got out his passbook and showed it to the teller. It was then that she realized that Ndeka had written his signature wrongly. She felt sorry and asked for pardon. She told him that the error was just on the signature. Ndeka forgave her. He also said it was due to age that he had made that error.

I did not take time to listen when my parents talked to me with love.
About the fruits of staying in school
I was very foolish indeed. That I couldn't follow my teachers' advice.
How stupid I was at that time.
That I didn't admire fellow young boys and girls.
Who woke up every morning to go to school!
To gain knowledge that has made them big men and women
Leaving me a miserable drop out
I am now the fertile ground for child labour.
Early marriage has been my title.
Abortion has been number one on my chores
Sugar daddies have made me their waitress
All leaving me without rights and freedom
Are you still in school?
Please listen to my sorrowful words
And don't drop out of school
Listen to your parents and teachers
Then you will be a responsible being

SECTION B

51. Read the passage below carefully and then answer in full sentences, the questions about it.

At 9:30 a.m. on Monday, I moved to Kampala City. I went there to procure a smart phone and a TV. I wanted to give the phone to my mother on her forty – second birthday that was to be celebrated the following day.

With my money in the school bag that I carried on my back, I continued moving until I felt exhausted and I boarded a taxi which had only two people in it, the driver and the conductress. I took the front seat and I comfortably enjoyed the music that was being played.

Barely a hundred meters had been driven. I lost my consciousness and by the time I woke up, I had been dumped in front of Makerere University main gate. My bag and the money had been taken. Thank God I had been neither defiled nor physically hurt in any way.

As I always say 'Never give up!', I comforted myself and walked back home, I went to my sleeping room and I broke my saving box. When I counted the money I had saved, I had accumulated two million shillings.

I took one million shillings and I went to Kampala city again. This time, I boarded a motorcycle (bodaboda) direct. I bought all that I wanted and I went back home using the same means.

SECTION B (60 MARKS)

51. Read the passage below carefully and answer the questions that follow in full sentences

It was all joy when Manuel noticed that her birthday date had drawn closer. As it is a tradition to many, Manuel started to prepare for it.

He had an idea of purchasing the best cake ever. This prompted her to ask her mother about the best baker around town. Her mother called Jamal, the baker about it. “A nice cake costs eighty thousand shillings because of the flavours added to it,” he said.

“My daughter, I have booked for you the cake already,” she said gladly. Manuel couldn’t hold her happiness. She hugged her mum in great mood of joy.

The D-day was 19th May, 2022. All the guests that she invited turned up. The opening prayer was led by Manuel’s aunt. Speeches, singing, cake cutting and dancing followed respectively.

“To God be the glory for He has kept my granddaughter for now thirteen years. Blow a thousand candles- my wish to you.” Veronica said.

SECTION B (50 MARKS)

(Questions 51 to 55 carry 10 marks each.)

51. Read the passage below carefully and answer in full sentences the questions that follow.

A birthday party is an annual event. It is held to celebrate the day one was born. Unlike funerals where people mourn their departed dear ones, birthday parties are celebrations of joy. They are celebrated by both adults and children. However, these celebrations are common among children.

Last Saturday, Akumu's class celebrated her birthday. The class had been informed a day earlier. A notice about the party had been displayed for the class by Mr. Lukyamuzi, the class teacher. "Hello children", Mr. Lukyamuzi said, "as displayed on the class notice board, tomorrow will be Akumu's birthday and we are all invited to join her in celebration".

This invitation excited Akumu's classmates. They talked about a lot of things that they expected and imagined. All children anxiously looked forward to enjoying the party. By 8:00 o'clock the following morning, all the children had arrived at school. surprisingly, Benanta, a habitual late comer had also kept time. Soon, all the pupils converged in the school main hall followed by their teachers shortly after. Introduced himself as the day's master of ceremonies, Mr. Jon Barasa asked Mark Kigozi, the shortest boy in the class, to lead the gathering in a word of prayer that would bless the celebration.

On the table laid before the gathering was a large pink and white cake. Every pupil was excited by the icing on the cake and how tasty it looked. The pupils enjoyed beverages of different flavours. There was a lot of music and dancing as the party lasted for about three hours. This was fun indeed for everybody in attendance.

During his speech towards the end of the party, the class teacher first congratulated Akumu on making thirteen years of age. "I am proud of akumu. Akumu is a true symbol of disciplined and humility", said Mr. Lukyamuzi. He then advised the children to emulate her discipline, warning that whoever misbehaved would not be allowed to be part of any future class celebrations.

51. Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow in full sentences.

In July 4th 2016, Nyabwolo was in the car heading to Uganda-Kenya border. She looked out of the window and saw smugglers being beaten by the police. Just last week she had been living in Soroti with her aunt Loy who told her how smugglers transport goods at night to dodge the police patro units and the URA check points

All the way from Tororo to Busia border town, she had expected to see something unusual. Nyabwolo could hardly sit still. She imagined a town with a lot of criminals. But this was never to be the case.

The car headed away from Busitema forest. It climbed through some hills then it went down into a small valley.

The sky darkened, Nyabwolo heard a booming noise. To the right she saw brilliant flashes of colour sparkle in the night. What a way to celebrate her coming to Busia!

Uncle Odwori welcomed her in a special way.

Section B
(Questions 51 to 55 carry 10 marks each)

51. Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow in full sentences.

The act of moving from one place to another is known as travelling. When we travel, we see many new things and learn a lot.

When I was a young child, I used to travel a lot with my parents. On one of these travels, we used a bus. I realized that buses have scheduled destinations. In this case, one had to pay the fare at the bus company head office and book a particular seat. After paying, one is given a ticket confirming the payments, seat number and time of departure.

The day we were supposed to travel, we arrived at the bus company head office thirty minutes before departure time. The conductor checked all the passengers' tickets and confirmed our seats. He then gave us numbered tags to label our luggage. After labelling our luggage, they put it in the boot.

Once in the bus and in our respective seats, the driver started the engine and off we went. The driver drove at a steady speed. He observed all the road signs and respected other road users. He would reduce speed at humps and stop wherever he would find a zebra crossing to allow pedestrians cross the road.

I enjoyed this particular journey and liked the way everything was well organised.

52. Read the poem below, and in full sentences, answer the questions that follow.

Debating –Debating –
Debating,
Is it a hobby or a war of words?
When the chairperson opens the debate,
And proposers spring into action,
Opposers throw in points of information,
You may just wonder their intentions.

A speaker raises a point of information,
The chairperson thinks it's just an inquiry,
Listen as the argument heats up,
But the speaker's time is up,
The timekeeper rings the bell.

The secretary has been jotting points,
The points proposed and those opposed,
Which side will carry the motion?
The one that has followed the rules,
And the one that knows how to argue,
Then the winner is made known.

SECTION B

51. Read the passage below carefully and answer the questions that follow in full sentences.

Most schools organise prefects' elections in second term. This is because most pupils have fully settled in schools especially those who could have joined in first term. These elections are organized by the school electoral commission.

In our school, the commission organized a free and fair elections. Before the polling day, the school electoral commission pinned the lists of candidates who had shown interest in different posts advertised. The posts included; the head prefect, head boy, head girl academic prefect, sanitation prefect, time keeper etc.

The most competitive post of all, was the post of Games and Sports. This is because it had more and capable contestants. Ainembabazi Isaiah Kevin P3, who overwhelmingly won changed his walking style.

His parents felt so happy that they purchased sweets, pan-cakes and buns to appreciate his electorate. On the polling day, the head teacher Mr. Onguti Joseph, was there to ensure that there was no vote rigging. All the electoral materials like ballot papers, ballot boxes, aprons, pens, basins and indelible ink were in place. The polling stations were manned by the presiding officer and polling assistants.

The chairperson Electoral Commission, Mr.Tumushabe Joseph, announced the results. All candidates who had won the election started celebrating while the ones who had lost could not help weeping. He later advised both the winners and losers that life does not end at that.

He advised them to work harder and co-operate to create harmony and form formidable leaders in the school. He said that there were no forms of malpractice like voter bribery, vote rigging and impersonation identified whatsoever. Since there were so many invalid votes cast, the electoral observers said the commission had not dully carried out civil education.

At the end of the day, all the pupils had understood the values of conducting free and fair election. They had also learnt values of living together harmoniously regardless of our difference in thoughts and ideologies.

52. Read the poem below carefully and, in full sentences answer the questions that follow.

People call you the wireless
You are in every family to send
Spoken words and sounds from a distance
Through sound waves
You give us good and bad news,
Adverts and announcements.

In people's families you sit
On tables, stools
Sometimes you are in pockets
With your aerials sharp-pointed
For clearer and better transmissions
Of the messages you give.

You educate, entertain and inform

Your creator Marooni must be praised
For giving birth to you in 1912.
Otherwise we would be ignorant
About the world.

What would people do without you?
There are football fans
Where would they get sports news?
Daddy says you shouldn't leave home
He promises to repair you when you break down.

Kibirige John Baptist
